Course content

This course is structured around Lesson 8 – Lesson 14 of Book 1 of New Practical Chinese Reader. Building upon spoken and written Chinese (Mandarin) and aspects of Chinese culture covered in CHIN 101, this course is a further introduction to the basic knowledge of Chinese language, paying equal attention to the development of listening, speaking, reading and writing skills.

Learning objectives

For most students, progress towards fluency in Chinese tends to be slower than could be expected with a European language. This course however provides a grounding in the language that will allow students to progress to more advanced study of Chinese, either at Victoria or elsewhere, with confidence. No language can be taught, however; they must be learnt. This course can provide a structure to both acquire vocabulary and sentence structures and an amount of practice, but student mastery of these must become increasingly autonomous and self-motivated. Students, particularly those who have not previously studied a second language, may wish to consult the booklet How to Learn Another Language: Insights for Successful Language Learning, available from the Student Notes Shop.

On completion of this course students are expected to have acquired an elementary competence in Chinese, including listening, speaking, reading and writing skills; and a basic understanding of aspects of Chinese culture, and the structure and history of Chinese characters.

In terms of the written language, students are expected to have acquired an active knowledge of about 350 Chinese characters (simplified) by the conclusion of the course.

Course delivery

The course consists of four lectures per week. Language learning is consolidated by means of class exercises and written assignments. Intensive tuition in pronunciation and tone discrimination is provided during this course. The digital materials are provided on Blackboard for students to do more listening and speaking exercises outside lectures.

Communication of additional information

Information on any timetable changes will be announced in lectures and posted on the Chinese Programme Notice Board on Level 7 of the von Zedlitz Building and Blackboard. You are advised to check Blackboard and the notice board regularly.

Expected workload

Students are required to attend four lectures. Course attendance should be at least 80% of all classes offered.

The university workload guidelines suggest that students should devote a total of 12 hours a week, including class contact hours, to this course for its duration in order to maintain satisfactory progress.

Assessment requirements

This course is entirely internally assessed. Assessment is based on a combination of continuous assessment throughout the course, one mid-term and one final written test, and final oral/AV tests. This combination is felt to be most appropriate to the nature of language acquisition course. Whilst it allows both students and staff to monitor individual progress closely throughout the course, it also provides mid-year and final yardsticks against which to measure this progress. Students are encouraged to develop regular study habits and to become increasingly autonomous in their language learning. Assessment is weighted in the following manner:

1. Written assignments and tests

4 written assignments, each worth 5%

Assignments to be submitted one week after being set and to be marked and returned within two weeks at the due date

Mid-term test (21 August) 25%Final test (16 October) 35%

All tests are 50 minutes in duration.

2. Listening and speaking practice and tests

Oral and A/V tests (week of 5-9 October)

Penalties

The late submission of assignments must be negotiated with the lecturer concerned before the due date and, depending upon circumstances, may be penalised.

Mandatory course requirements

It is mandatory for a student to submit at least 2 out of 4 written assignments, and sit all tests.

Academic Integrity and Plagiarism

Academic integrity means that university staff and students, in their teaching and learning are expected to treat others honestly, fairly and with respect at all times. It is not acceptable to mistreat academic, intellectual or creative work that has been done by other people by representing it as your own original work.

Academic integrity is important because it is the core value on which the University's learning, teaching and research activities are based. Victoria University's reputation for academic integrity adds value to your qualification.

The University defines plagiarism as presenting someone else's work as if it were your own, whether you mean to or not. 'Someone else's work' means anything that is not your own idea. Even if it is presented in your own style, you must acknowledge your sources fully and appropriately. This includes:

- Material from books, journals or any other printed source
- The work of other students or staff
- Information from the internet
- Software programs and other electronic material
- Designs and ideas
- The organisation or structuring of any such material

Find out more about plagiarism, how to avoid it and penalties, on the University's website: http://www.victoria.ac.nz/home/study/plagiarism.aspx

General University Policies and Statutes

Students should familiarise themselves with the University's policies and statutes, particularly the Assessment Statute, the Personal Courses of Study Statute, the Statute on Student Conduct and any statutes relating to the particular qualifications being studied; see the Victoria University Calendar or go to the Academic Policy and Student Policy sections on:

http://www.victoria.ac.nz/home/about/policy

The AVC(Academic) website also provides information for students in a number of areas including Academic Grievances, Student and Staff conduct, Meeting the needs of students with impairments, and student support/VUWSA student advocates. This website can be accessed at: http://www.victoria.ac.nz/home/about/avcacademic/Publications.aspx
